TURNING ON THE WATER.

The Cogawell Fountain on Pennsylvania Avenue in Use Again.

The white marble fountain at the in tersection of Pennsylvania avenue and Seventh street, which has so long been unused, has at last received the attention of the District Commissioners. To day an order was issued directing that water connection be once more made with the fountain, and soon a stream of Peternac water will be delighting the thirsty The fountain, as is well known, was originally presented to the District by Mr. Cogawell, a temperance advocate, on condition that ice-water should be This offer was refused, but Mr. Cogswell was not discouraged and proposed to build the fountain without conditions, but with a statue of himself to crown it. The authorities refused to grant a permit when they learned of this proposal, so he abandoned the figure of a crane, and so the fountain went into operation, but, after it had been running a few months, it was found that it wasted water, and its water connections were cut off, and since then it has been in disuse.

INSTREBUTION IMPUDENCE. The all absorbing topic of conversa tion in baseball circles at the present time is the astounding and impudent offer of the New York World on behalf of the Brorherhood to the members of the League. It wants to com-promise with the League, and so in-quiries were addressed to each of the clubs asking them if the Piayers' League would change the names of its clubs, would it (the League), agree to respect all contracts and play exhibi-tion games at the conclusion of the season. To the honor of the League officials be it said, each and all of them officials be it said, each and all of them promptly repudiated the offer of com-promise and asserted that they could not and would not recogfize the wreekers in any way.

PRESIDENT YOUNG'S REPLY to the conspirators was very apt, and is given in the following interview So far as the business managem of the National League is concerned, said he, "we are not aware of the ex-istence of such an organization as the Brotherhood of Ball Players, and hence will not treat with them upon any proposition that may be advanced. Besides, nothing has been received from any such association, offering from any such association, offering either to change schedule dates and cities, or play a series of games in the fall of the year, after our championship season closes. All sorts of atories are rife, but the National League is determined to adhere to the course mapped out in the beginning of this season and keep engagements with its players and the public, BEGARDLESS OF COST.

To be sure, money has been lost by the gentlemen who are financially in-perested in our organization, but still not as much as was feared or prognos-ticated when the playing upon the dia-mend for 1800 was inaugurated. A reason for this is that the salary list is the National League is much smaller than it was last year, and one club of which I have a personal knowledge only pays $19,000 this year, whereas in 1880 the 1889 its salary list aggregated $10,000. President Nimick of Pittsburg paid a dying visit to Washington yesterday, and in a short conversation he assured me that every Saturday evening checks are forthcoming to meet any demands that might be made upon the club's treasury, and

"This is but a sample of what I hear

"and consequently we of the League are not accoing awake nights worrying about an slieged opposition. It is NEARLY TWENTY YEARS' since I was appointed secretary of the League, and if I live and nothing happens I expect to hold the same position for another score of years. Ever since I have been connected with the organization there have been plottings against it, but it has weathered all storms, and the present squall is rapidiy and daily to fregany ability to do harm. Under no circumstances will the National League play exhibition or any other series of games with clubs not in its acritis of games with cruos not in its jurisdiction, and all talk to the contrary it the next absurd nonsense. All the cipital that we require is behind our eight cipits, and the players constituting the National League teams are pretty well convinced that this statement is
